Fast forward one year...

BGN (BSpoke Global Networks) Events celebrated its first year of successful trading by hosting a hospitality day for the professional teams who helped them off the starting grid. The day began with a tour of Oxfordshire-based Formula One team Super Aguri.

Susannah Adams and Katy Bruce from Critchleys attended the event. Andrew Davies and Chris Westerman from Barclays Bank corporate team who provided the working capital were also in attendance. The legal team from Osborne Clark were represented by Janita Good, Maninder Sagoo and Mark Webber.

BGN is a specialist consultancy which focuses on supplying international connectivity solutions for major events. The company began life when the key individuals within a small but promising division of a Reading-based communications company decided to explore the possibility of a management buy out. The division specialised in providing networks to Formula One events, and although the company has now widened its focus to include other industries Formula One remains a significant part of the business.

The management buy out was partly funded by a business angel sourced by corporate advisers Critchleys Chartered Accountants, who also structured the transaction. Susannah Adams from Critchleys commented 'It's great to see a small business achieve such success in a major industry. BGN prides itself on being a lean and flexible organisation able to deliver cost effective solutions – it is fitting therefore to celebrate at the headquarters of Super Aguri - another lean and mean success story of 2007.'
